DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 10-11 are rejected under 35 USC §102(b)/103(a). This rejection is set forth in the prior Office action mailed on December 27, 2006.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. The text of those sections of Title 35, U.S. Code not included in this action can be found in a prior Office action.

Claims 1-3, 4-9 and 12 are rejected under 35 USC §103(a). This rejection is set forth in the prior Office action mailed on December 27, 2006.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments filed on March 21, 2007 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

With regard to the product by process claims rejection, claims 10-11, applicants state that they are at loss understanding the rejection, since the process clearly states that the tissue is calendered at east 120 N/cm and the cited prior art shows only 105 N/cm at the upper range. The examiner is confused by the above statement, since it was clearly established that a product by process is still a product and that it is judged by the properties of such product that makes it novel and non-obvious over the prior art. As stated in the prior rejection the burden is on applicants to show that the product is different than the cited prior art, i.e., it is the examiner position that the tissue of the cited reference is patentably the same as the ones claimed, albeit, made by a slightly different process. The court has been very specific as that the burden is shifted to applicants to prove that product by process are different than that of the cited reference. Note that it is not sufficient to indicate that the process imports unexpected results to the product, without a clear showing, evidences, of such results, i.e., it is considered as mere allegation of patentability. Again the court cases have been repeated below, (Emphasis Added):

As the afore mentioned claims are product by process claims, it is deemed that "[A]ny difference imparted by the product by process claims would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made because where the examiner has found a substantially similar product as in the applied prior art the burden of proof is shifted to the applicants to establish that their product is patentably distinct, ..." In re Brown, 173 U.S.P.Q. 685, and In re Fessmann, 180 U.S.P.Q. 324.

Further, "[P]rocess limitations are significant only to the extent that they distinguish the claimed product over the prior art product." In re Luck, 177 U.S.P.Q. 523 (1973)

With regard to the 103 rejections, applicants argue that the claimed is non-obvious over the cited prior art, because the calendering step leads to surprising results, unexpected results. Yet, no data have been shown or pointed out to evidence such results and therefore, they amount to a general allegation of patentability.

Applicants also argue that the Jennings et al. reference teaches away from the claimed process, since it does not seek to increase the caliper of the tissue, which is the objective or the claimed invention. However, such limitation(s) is/are not included in the claims, i.e., there is no caliper limitation(s) in the claims. Note that while the claims are read in view of the specification, so to understand the meaning of the claims, but limitations on the specification cannot be imported onto the claims. Jennings et al. teach the calendering at the same levels as the applicants and along with the embossing steps and the secondary reference, the combination of references reads on the claims, as claimed.

Conclusion

5. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

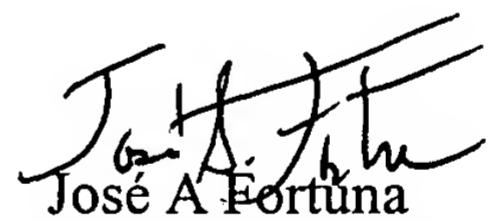

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
